What an Englishman Thinks of the American People.

He says "they hurry, they eat quick, they quip, they talk, they have stomach ache, headache, liver troubles and towel complaint; they fret and they scold, they get cross at nothing and without cause; they look all aw and hollow-eyed; they look hungry and can't eat; they spit up food; they have wakeful nights. They die early because they disregard the true principles to correct."

These troubles and many others all grow out of and from a torpid liver, and called dyspepsia or indigestion. They can be cured and have been cured, and in every case with a guaranty that they will be cured by the use of Dr. Mintie's English Dandelion Pills. Sold by all druggists. Price 50c. per bottle.

Health, strength and vigor of the Kidneys and Bladder always follow the use of the most potent compound, Dr. Mintie's Nephretic. Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Inflammation, Stomach or Private Disorders are quickly cured by it. For Leucorrhoea it has no equal. Don't be persuaded to take any other preparation. Everyone who has tried it recommends it. For sale by all druggists.

PARDONS.

Following is the list of the persons to whom the executive pardon has been extended during the past two years, with the offense for which the party was convicted, the term of sentence, and the cause for the pardon:

February 8, 1878.—Robert Patterson, attempt to commit rape; sentenced to 2 years imprisonment. Judge, jury and citizens recommended pardon.

March 3.—Nicholas Peter Nielsen, same offense, and same term of sentence. Both the above were pardoned because they were but 12 and 13 years of age respectively when the offense was committed.

March 13.—Charles Sherman; larceny; 1 year's imprisonment. Pardoned on account of good behavior, a few days before the termination of his sentence.

April 1.—Alma Winn; robbery; sentenced to 10 years. Pardoned on petition of citizens and a majority of the jury; and grave doubts being expressed as to his guilt.

June 29.—Charles Crowley; assault; sentence, 3 years. Pardoned on petition of judge, district attorney, United States marshal, and others.

August 27.—John Stockfish, larceny; sentence, 3 years; pardoned on petition of judge, jury and citizens.

September 14.—Singleton Ferguson; larceny; sentence, 2 years; pardoned on petition of citizens.

September 19.—Aaron Folsberg; larceny; sentence, 1 year; pardoned to save citizenship, and on account of good behavior.

October 2.—John H. Newbery; larceny; sentence, 1 year; pardoned on account of good behavior to save citizenship.

January 14, 1879.—Charles Fuesig; murder in second degree; sentence, 15 years; pardoned on account of disease contracted in prison, which would have resulted fatally had he not been released.

January 14.—Singleton Ferguson; larceny; sentence, 1 year.

February 3.—George F. Sibbey; offense for which he was convicted is omitted; pardoned on petition of citizens.

February 12.—Michael Fitzgerald; plea guilty to burglary; sentence, 1 year; pardoned on account of good conduct and petition of many citizens.

May 29.—John S. Lee; highway robbery; sentence, 9 years; pardoned on petition of judge, district attorney, United States marshal and citizens.

September 10.—Archibald Barrett; murder in second degree; sentence, 10 years; pardoned on petition of judge, district attorney and other officers of the court and the jury, and citizens on account of good conduct.

September 18.—Charles Miller; larceny; sentence, 3 years; pardoned for meritorious conduct during imprisonment.

October 11.—Grange Berger; larceny; sentence, 6 years; pardoned on account of good conduct and to save citizenship.

October 31.—Myron Whitehead; grand larceny; sentence, 2 years and 6 months.

November 8.—Samuel Barnes; larceny; sentence, 4 years; pardoned on petition of judge, jury and citizens, believing him fully punished.

November 8.—Charles Colton; grand larceny; sentence, 3 years; pardoned because sufficiently punished.

November 13.—Edward Pickup; grand larceny; sentence, 1 year; pardoned on account of good behavior and to save citizenship.

November 13.—John Hawkins; larceny; sentence, 2 years; pardoned to save citizenship on account of good behavior.

December 3.—George A. Wilson; grand larceny; sentence, 2 years; pardoned on account of advanced age, good behavior, and for services rendered the penitentiary officers.

December 8.—Maurice Syler; grand larceny; sentence, 1 year; pardoned on account of good behavior to save citizenship.

December 15.—Richard Gough; grand larceny; sentence, 2 years; pardoned because it was discovered he was not guilty of the offense for which he was indicted.

December 17.—Charles Lyman; grand larceny; sentence, 2 years; pardoned as it was proven, to the satisfaction of all, that he was entirely innocent.

Gone.

A brief notice in this issue of the HERALD tells of the death in Cheyenne, last Monday, of John Willis. To many of the older inhabitants of Salt Lake this name will be familiar, as having belonged to one who for many years was a resident of the city, and a well known character here. Thirty years ago, John Willis, then a man well advanced in life, came to Salt Lake and, not long afterwards, established a business—the fine millinery, in the territory—on the then vacant lot of which the Godde drug store is now the corner. During the subsequent twenty years this little business was a checking place for lights and shades frequently bleached. He was seen upon the street almost daily, until about ten years ago, when he suddenly disappeared, since which little has been known here of his whereabouts. An advertisement in the HERALD—placed there by his step daughter, Mrs. Mary J. Young—asking for information concerning him, failed to find a response; but the news now comes of the death of the old man, as stated above. It appears that most of the time since he left Utah he resided in Wyoming, and latterly it was his evident aim to prevent knowledge of his whereabouts reaching his relatives, acquaintances and old-time associates, as those in England, as well as in Utah, and others here, who endeavored to find him, were long in ignorance of him. Poor old man; may he rest in peace. 125

THE COOLING MOTH.

REMEMBER—No. 1.

This moth is seldom seen as it flies about in the evening, and its color is favorable to its not being observed. It is at this time (in the twilight) that it visits the apple, pear and quince trees, when they are in blossom, and the young fruit is just being developed. Into the young apple, pear, or quince the moth lays an egg, which soon hatches in warm weather, and from the moment of birth it feeds on the apple until it is full grown, during which time it eats its way to the core, where it enlarges the cavity by eating the best part of the fruit and filling the space with its filth. The worm then makes preparation for changing its state into a chrysalis, so as to again become a moth and perpetuate its species. To do this, it borrows its way out of the apple from which it ate itself down by a silky thread when it seeks for a place of concealment to enter into the chrysalis state.

It is at this time a very simple affair to entrap the worm, by putting pieces of old mauling or cloth round the apple trees, into the folds of which the larva will creep to escape observation. Every few days these pieces of mauling or cloth can be examined, and the worm destroyed. This has to be done systematically by one who understands the habits of the "moth," and who will either crush, or better still, burn them. As a general thing the young apples when infested with larva become "wind-fall," and the slightest shake will loosen them from the tree. If these fallen apples are examined the larva will be found. For this reason such apples should be gathered up regularly and destroyed, not thrown carelessly on to a dirt heap, as the larva would then escape and, if sufficiently mature, perpetuate its kind. The better way is in all cases to burn all fruit that is found to be infested, and place the ashes on the ground for fertilizing purposes.

Care should also be taken in rooms where apples, pears or quinces are stored, that there shall be no outlet for the moths to escape, for they frequently mature in such places from fruit which is infected, as may be known by the fluttering of the moths when a candle is taken into dark apple rooms; or they may be developed from the pupae or chrysalis contained in packing boxes in which apples have been stored.

Nothing has yet been said of remedies for the evil by washes and sprays, but simple precautions that can be resorted to without any expense or danger. Besides these methods the bark of trees may be examined, under which the nests may be found and the larva snugly ensconced therein. The cracks and seams in old boarding and fences may also be examined profitably, but carefully, for the mischief is not ended by merely scraping the nests off the boards. These creatures are very tenacious of life; even lime-wash does not destroy them unless the nest in which they dwell is broken.

The appearance of the larva when the cover of the winter nest is removed, of a yellowish-white color all along the body and the head is black. When it is remembered that each female larva never lays less than 200 and frequently 500 eggs, it is easy to see the importance of destroying every egg and moth or apple worm.

PIPES, CIGARS AND TOBACCO, AT ED HARRIS' LITTLE CHURCH 'ROUND THE CORNER.

That Row.

The trial of the parties implicated in the row at Graves' saloon, the other night, came off yesterday. The testimony for Graves was that he did not hit young Hewlett; that the hot water which went down Hewlett's back was from the tipping over of the stove, and that the party who gouged Hewlett's eye was the one that was fighting with him. Hewlett testified that the rest of the story, about the stove being down and coals all over the floor, was as stated. Messrs. Sturman and Pitts, of Godde's drug store, were placed on the stand, and testified that the saloon was a nuisance; that there were frequently rows there, and that in these rows the parties in the drug store were in danger of their lives; that there was but a thin partition between the drug store and the saloon, and that the words used in the saloon could be heard in the drug store, and that their business was being injured by it; that the language was most profane and foul, and that on the night in question the voice of Graves could be heard plainly using the language mentioned above. Graves was fined $30, and Householder $10.

HARRIS.

A Note of Warning Repeated.

A short time since we cautioned the people of southern Utah against a man giving the name of Harris, and that we only have to repeat the warning, that this is not the case, we can only again notify the public there and elsewhere that Harris is a fraud, and we have and will have nothing whatever to do with him. He is dark complexioned, of medium height, and is evidently consumptive. We learn that he has lately been victimizing the people in Beaver County, especially at Minersville. Look out for him! 124

Glass Ball Shooting Match.

The glass ball shooting match, yesterday afternoon, at Arnold's, brought out on a bet that McLea could not break 95 balls out of 100 with a shotgun, thrown from a revolving trap, was not a success. There was not a very large attendance. McLea started out poorly, and lost the match on the fifteenth shot, having missed six in the fifteen. Following is the score:

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15

10 0 0 1 0 1 1 1 1 1 0 1 0 1 0

He then made a bet that he could break eighteen out of twenty balls, thrown in the same manner, which he won, the following being the score:

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15

The Long-Loat Heard from at Brown's Park.

Ute Intelligence.

Brown's Park, SUMMIT COUNTY, Utah, January 1, 1880.

Editors Herald:

Procrastination, that ardent thief, has for so long a time held me in bondage, that I hardly know how to address myself to the task of indicating a letter. But as I see that "Custos Morum" lives and moves, has a being and finds something to write about in far off Central America; that C. R. Savage finds items of interest for the Herald in his dreary wanderings in Old England, it gives me hope that I too can find something of interest for your readers in the midst of gold placers, Ute outrages, beautiful snow and the advent of the New Year. So, wishing you a happy New Year, I come down to business.

While prospecting in southeastern Utah last winter, I discovered fine gold in the sands and gravel along the Green River and above the head of the grand cañon of the Colorado. This gold I found was similar in character to the gold found on the Snake River, if anything coarser in quality. I immediately began following the track up the river hoping to find it in sufficient quantity to warrant the erection of works, ditches, etc.

ON THE TRAIL.

Following the river to a point about twenty miles above the old Gunnison crossing, where the river comes out of the gorge formed by the river cutting through the mountain range on the north side of the Little White River, I was forced to turn back, not being able to penetrate the gorge any great distance. When I again struck the river, it was at this point the Green River, which flows into the Green from the eastern side. I again found the gold everywhere along the river banks with a perceptible difference in the size of the particles.

THE SOURCE.

I had long since come to the conclusion that I could find the source of this supply. Somewhere farther up the river I was called I should find it, either in some ancient basin, a glacier deposit, the bed of some old extinct lake, or, failing all these, a country abounding in rich gold bearing rocks. As I followed the river I prospecting the gravel carefully wherever I could conveniently reach the river banks.

BROWN'S PARK.

It is situated in the northeast corner of Summit County. The Colorado line runs east of and just misses the valley; the Wyoming line north at fifteen miles, leaving the place known as Gunnison crossing, Brown's Park, Island Park, and Little Brown's Hole, entirely inside of Utah. When I reached this point I found extensive gravel bars with enough of fine gold contained therein to make me believe that I was on the right track for gold saving, it could be made to pay. In appearance, as compared with Snake River dust, it is about as follows: One particle of the gold found here would make twenty particles of Snake River dust.

RIM ROCK DIGGINGS.

Later I found a rim rock at the northwest end of the past winter's prospecting exceedingly well, some of the gold being quite coarse; one piece I found weighing thirteen and a half cents, and the balance ranging from this down to pieces the size of third sized. This determined me as to my future course. Writing east for electro silver plate, for the purpose of testing the practicability of saving the fine gold, I quietly slid out for North Park, and a look at the eastern slope of the Rockies. I had not seen for many a long year.

ASTONISHMENT OF THE NATIVES.

Not liking the mineral outlook in that part of Colorado well enough to stay with it very long I returned to Brown's Park via Green River City bringing with me plates, lumber for rocker, tools, mercury, etc., etc. Robbing and mauling me quite quietly down, constructed our rocker and went to work. This section of country is filled up with what is known in the local parlance as cowpunchers, i.e., cattle men or to speak more properly, stock raisers, who, in the winter season live and graze their herds in the Park. When summer comes they desert their rude huts in the valley and take their herds to high pastures or summer ranges. A group of days after we had commenced operations two of these lawless creatures passing along the road on the opposite side of the river caught the sound of our old "Gonzaga bumper" and stopping their nag, stepped down and came to the edge of our regular proceeding we were going through, then put spurs to their nags rushed down to the ford, so came galloping up to where we were working and, almost before checking their headlong career, they asked, "What in hell are you doing?" We informed them in a quiet manner that we were working a rocker.

"Yes," said one, "but what good is a rocker?" Mr. Robinson lifted a pan full of gravel, washed it in a ditch, and showed the publishers the result. Gold! gold! fine, bright, glittering yellow gold? Their eyes sparkled, expanded, begged out; then one of the train broke out in a fit of spasms, "I'll be gold-miner if I find gold! Why, I've lived right here night into five years, and I didn't know of it. I say, like, let's go and get a box with a bottom, and come and work right alongside of these fellows." We quietly informed them that we had taken, self and partners, the entire bar or flat, and would seriously object to such a proceeding. "What!" says one "you come without leave or license on to Bill Tetterton's ranch, and go to work and wash his bull winter range into the river? I damn how that'll be; guess I can have some of it, too."

LOCAL EXCITEMENT.

They soon went away satisfied that "the was good" and that the men we were working for were not to be more gold in the vicinity and in a few days the cow-punchers came down on the diggings, as the Assyrians came down on Judah of old, like locusts on the grass. For my authority on this subject see ancient Egyptian Third Reader. Mexican, Italian, Irish, Scotch, American and half-breed, left their pastoral duties to take care of themselves, all eager and determined to get a claim in the new diggings.

PAY DIRT IN THE NEW ELDOGADO.

This placer ground, along the river course, will pay, with the rocker process, from $2.50 to $5 per day to the hand. This ground I speak of is the poor man's diggings the extent of which has been unlimited. The high burrs and deep diggings which will require some considerable outlay of capital will pay with hydraulic works from $10 to $50 per day, and like the poor man's ground is very extensive. What it will pay on bed rock, I cannot state, as the most of our work this season has been surface work, no shaft having been sunk to a greater depth than fifteen feet, but it pays, from the grass roots, as far down as we have gone. I have been at some pains to discover the source of this gold, and as it does not occur above this point, I have come to the conclusion that here is where the source exists.

UTE NEWS AND ITEMS.

During the past season the people of this section were considerably frightened over the Ute outbreak. The residents, most of the miners included, fled on the first news of the massacre at White River, to the nearest points of safety on the railroad. The Indians, it seems, did the same thing, only they went south, and the further each party went the more intense became their fright. To-day the women and children are safely housed in Green River City, Rock Springs and other railroad towns, and daily being told every day will bring news of the wholesale slaughtering of all their male relatives, whilst the principal part of the male population are anxiously looking every day for news that the Ute has smote the railroad towns, Rock Springs, and that consequently their female relatives are slumbering peacefully in the arms of death, or in some Ute-keeper. By the way, some strange rumors have been spread, that you have either permitted Red Hand, the snorting maniac of the Tribune, to escape from your city and contaminate the morals of the heretofore pure and innocent red men at Los Pinos, or that you have permitted the said Red Hand to escape from your city and contaminate the morals of the heretofore pure and innocent red men at Los Pinos, or that you have permitted the said Red Hand to escape from your city and contaminate the morals of the heretofore pure and innocent red men at Los Pinos.

The Concert.

There was considerable talk on the street, yesterday, about the concert that takes place on Monday night at the Theatre—the second of the series given by the Carleiss Orchestra Combination. There is every reason to believe that this will be, as the first, a musical success; that it will be an artistic triumph is unquestioned. To avoid even the appearance of a repetition it will be, by reference to the programme, that the vocal portions of the programme will be rendered by persons of well known ability, none of whom appeared on the previous occasion, and the solos, such as there are, will be on different instruments, while the string quartette from Haydn and the flute solo are in themselves rare attractions. The whole entertainment of the highest order, and our citizens are fully capable of appreciating the efforts of this combination. Rehearsals have been in progress, and the various members are now as well prepared for the concert as they could be in a month. Everything has been arranged for the comfort and pleasure of the audience, and we look for another crowded house, as the excellence of the entertainment merits.

The box office will be open for the sale of seats to-morrow morning, at 10 o'clock.

The Primaries.

To-morrow evening, in the places designated for that purpose, and known by voters, municipal primary meetings will be held. An advertisement published this morning gives official notice of the election, stating that a mayor, five aldermen, nine councilors, a recorder, a treasurer, a marshal, and an assessor and collector are to be voted for on the 9th prox.

It is for the purpose of choosing representatives to a general municipal convention to be held at the City Hall on Monday, February 24, where parties are to be nominated for the above offices, that the primaries are to be held. It is therefore desirable that all voters should attend the primaries and interest themselves in the matter. In so doing they will be able to give expression to the views they entertain, and use their influence to secure good men for the positions; otherwise they should not complain of the choice of those sufficiently alive to their duties to interest themselves in the primaries.
